The original versions of PERT and CPM used AOA project networks, so this was the conventional type for some years. However, AON project networks have some important advantages over AOA project networks for conveying exactly the same information. 1. AON project networks are considerably easier to construct than AOA project networks. 2.

PERT and CPM, acronyms for Program Evaluation Review Technique and Critical Path Method, respectively, will provide answers to these questions. Each of these approaches to scheduling represents a project as a network, and hence the material in this chapter can be viewed as an extension of the deterministic networks discussed in Chapter 5.

Chapter

¼ The first step in CPM/PERT is to construct a project network. ¼ In the project network each activity is represented by an arc connected by two nodes. The first node represents the start of the activity and the second node represents the end of it. ¼ The network should reflect activities precedence relations.
